PLAN OUTING FOR AFTERNOON AND TONIGHT

Demonstration of Fire Apparatus To Be Followed by Picnic Dinner

FIREWORKS SPECTACLE

Will Be Concluding Feature of Night Entertainment; Public Is Invited

In spite of lowering clouds and a threatened downpour of rain at any minute, plans for the outing to be held at Crystal Lake Park this afternoon and tonight as a part of the program of the eleventh annual convention of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio, being held here this week, were being made at convention headquarters on S. Prospect st at noon today.

Today's events followed the opening session held yesterday afternoon when several questions of interest to the chiefs and to firemen in general were discussed. The discussions were opened by Grant E. Mouser, Jr., assistant attorney general, who talked on plans for amending the workmen's compensation law to provide relief for police and firemen. Other questions discussed was the investigation of arson cases, education of citizens in fire prevention and a history of fire departments and fire-fighting.

The plans announced for today provide for a parade from the convention headquarters headed by the firemen's band of Columbus and consisting of visiting chiefs and their families in automobiles provided by citizens. Various pieces of apparatus on display were also to be in the parade, which was scheduled to leave the convention hall at 1:30 o'clock and go north on Prospect-st to Church-st, east on Church to Main st and north on Main st to Crystal Lake Park.

Program at Park

Immediately upon the arrival of the parade at the park, a series of demonstrations will be given by the pumpers and by the various exhibitors at the convention and at 6 o'clock a picnic dinner will be served to the visitors with Fred W. Warner as toastmaster and with Leslie Peat, of Lakewood, as the speaker. The night program will close with a fireworks display at 9:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

This morning's program was divided into three group meetings, when problems peculiar to each group were discussed. Paid chiefs met in the convention hall with Chief D. K. Moser, of Warren, serving as chairman and with H. L. Bond, field secretary of the Weather conditions were unfavorable early in the day but the three fliers were hopeful that they would improve enough to permit a take off either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Plans For Rigid Traffic Regulation Announced as New Signals Are Started

Municipal Judge and Police Chief Outline Program Following Inauguration of Sidearm Light System; Left Turn at Intersections Now in Effect

More rigid enforcement of the local traffic ordinance, especially with regard to double parking and to parking in the non-parking and safety zones was assured by both Municipal Judge William R. Martin and Chief of Police Thompson, at official inauguration of the new traffic light system here yesterday.

Conspicuous non-parking signs have been erected and curbs painted, Judge Martin declared, and there is no reason why any motorist who exercises any care whatever should park in these zones. The same thing applies to double parking, the judge said, the city traffic ordinance is perfectly clear on this matter and there is no excuse for its violation and any motorist who deliberately and carelessly violates this ordinance must expect to be hard if brought into court it was announced.

The sentiment of Judge Martin was seconded by Chief of Police Thompson. With traffic lights that will function accurately and with signs erected and curbs painted, there is no reason for any violation of the traffic ordinance, the chief declared.

With turning on the new traffic lights yesterday, the six rules adopted by City Council at its last meeting, governing the use and operation of the signals, automatically became effective.

Of most interest was establishing the left turn. Under the new rules, a motorist desiring to make the left turn must draw to the center and may make the turn against the red provided he can work his way through the traffic, going so at his own risk. He must go to the center of the intersection and not cut the corner. This, the chief declared, will be an iron clad rule.

The left turn is being greeted with delight by those motorists who have continually maintained the old plan resulted in unnecessary delays and unnecessary congestion of traffic.

The new lights after being turned on yesterday afternoon, were off last night and part of this morning while a change was being made alternating the

PLANE CRASHES

A Reserve Corps Flier In Serious Condition At Dayton

Dayton, June 6—Lieut. Clayton Fryer, 32, of Buffalo, N. Y. an officer in the army air reserve corps, is in a serious condition in the Miami Valley Hospital here today from injuries sustained in an airplane crash near here yesterday.

According to reports, Fryer, who is taking a training course at the Fairfield airport, was flying alone when his motor stopped, in mid-air and the plane crashed from a height of about 150 feet. The lieutenant is suffering from severe bruises and lacerations. The plane was completely wrecked.

RAINFALL FOR JUNE HITTING HIGH MARK

Downpour Here Already Far Above Total for All of May

With heavy rainfall every day since the beginning of the month and showers predicted for tonight, June promises to flourish with the proverbial April weather denied citizens of Marion County during that month.

Thursday, however, will be "fair" if today's prediction proves true.

While only 1.40 inches of rain fell during the entire 31 days of May, which was a decidedly dry month, June has already brought 3.31 inches of rainfall, an amount far above normal. The heaviest rainfall of the present wet spell occurred yesterday when there was 1.38 inches of precipitation. Sunday a total of .82 of an inch, was the second highest. Monday's precipitation was .95 inches, and Friday's, .43 inches.

Normal temperature for early June, according to U. S. Weatherman Alexander, of Columbus, is 68. Temperature so far this month has ranged from 48 to 72 degrees in Marion County. Temperature for the same period of time in Marion County one year ago ranged from 45 to 75, which is nearer normal. Yesterday's high was 70 and last night's low 53, while one year ago the high was 65, the low 45.

NO WORMS, CAL

Famous Guide Will Teach President Use of Flies

BRULE, WIS., June 6—"Mon dieu!"

This exclamation burst forth today from the lips of Antoine Dennis, dean of French-Canadian guides on the Brule River when reminded of the fact that President Coolidge used worms in fishing for trout in the Black Hills last summer and possibly may try the same kind of bait again this summer in the northern Wisconsin trout streams.

"We only feesh with flies—dry flies up here, and if I act as the president's guide, I will teach heem how to land the beeg ones with a dry fly. And after that you will hear no more about feeshing wit' worms," Dennis said.

Hoover To Be Fought by Ohio Leaders Who Backed Willis

Kansas City, June 6—Loyal to the memory of their dead leader, Senator Frank B. Willis, 20 members of the Ohio delegation of 51 to the national Republican convention will support a middle western candidate for the nomination for president, according to Col Ralph D. Cole, Findlay, O., former representative.

Colonel Cole was in Kansas City today to lay the groundwork for the activities of his delegation, which will arrive tomorrow, and which, according to Colonel Cole, will oppose to the last ditch the nomination of Hoover.

"We'll stand for any one except Hoover," Colonel Cole said. "Lowden is acceptable; so is Curtis. The nominee must be a middle western man.

"For the first time in the history of American politics, the Republican nomination is controlled absolutely by a group of states in the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri valleys."

Closing Arguments To Complete Contempt Trial of Stewart

Washington, June 6—Col. Robert W. Stewart's contempt trial reached the final stages today.

Closing arguments and the court's charge were all that remained before the case goes to the jury.

Taking the stand in his own defense, Stewart denied he had ever told the Senate Teapot Dome Committee that he did not receive any of the Continental Trading Company's Liberty Bonds. He admitted he refused to answer two questions, and challenged the committee's authority.

AERIAL SERVICE WILL CONNECT CHAIN THEATERS

Owners of New House Here Buy Airplane for Use in Covering Circuit

Marion's need for an airport, emphasized last week when an airplane nose-dived on a farm west of Marion and cracked up, was further seen by business men today when it was revealed that one of Marion's business concerns will use an airplane as a means of transportation for its executives.

V. C. Young, general manager and secretary treasurer of the corporation building the Palace Theater on W. Center-st, has purchased a new Waco plane, according to a letter received by R. T. Lewis, local realtor.

The Palace Theater organization has or is constructing a chain of 10 theaters in Marion, Canton, Gary, Anderson, Muncie and Kokomo. Officers of the organization plan to use the new plane to reach the cities on their circuit. They believe that with the plane they can cover their circuit in at least a fourth the time it would take by any other mode of transportation.

In his letter to Mr. Lewis, Mr.

RAMON M. BUCHANAN LOSES LIFE AT SEA

Youth in Navy, Brother of Former Marion Editor, Is Drowned in Chinese Waters

Ramon M Buchanan, 19, who enlisted in the naval service here last October, met death by drowning while on duty in Chinese Waters, June 4, according to a message received yesterday by his mother, Mrs. Rosa Buchanan, at her home in Ashland.

News of the young man's death was brought to Marion yesterday by his brother, D. L. Buchanan, of Canton, former city editor of the Star, who is arranging to obtain complete details of the drowning. He returned to his mother's home in Ashland after spending a few hours here yesterday afternoon.

The message, which came from the Bureau of Navigation of the Navy department, stated that particulars of the tragic happening were not available but would be furnished by the commander of the U. S. Simpson with which young Buchanan was serving as a seaman.

The only definite information given was that he was lost overboard while at sea. His body was not recovered.

Ramon Buchanan had a number of acquaintances in Marion, where he visited frequently in recent years. He enlisted at the local naval recruiting station.

Umberto Nobile and the other 17 members of the missing Italia expedition.

The expedition will establish an airplane base in the northwest region of Nova Zembla. The plane will reconnoiter from the base in an attempt to verify messages picked up by Russian radio stations, which stated that Nobile had made a safe landing on Franz Josef Land.

100 EMPLOYES KEPT BACK AS BANDITS WORK

Ten Thousand Dollar Payroll Taken from Detroit News Cashier

USED SAWED-OFF GUNS

One Officer Believed Dying and Another Shot in Foot

Detroit, June 6—One policeman is dying, another was shot in the foot and one bandit is believed to have been wounded when six men armed with revolvers and sawed-off shot guns held up the cashier of the Detroit News today and escaped with a payroll estimated from $10,000 to $50,000.

The dying policeman is George Harstch, 28, a traffic officer stationed at Second and Lafayette-blvd. The other officer is Guyot Craig, 29.

Craig said he shot one of the bandits as they started to re-enter their automobile. The bandit fell and was picked up by his comrades and thrown into their car. The bandits kept up a steady barrage of shots all the while.

Hold Up 100

The sextet parked their car—a blue machine—in front of the main entrance to the News Building on Lafayette-blvd. One man stood guard on the curb, one remained in the machine, and four—all young and well-dressed, went into the building, carrying their weapons under their coats.

They strolled calmly to the second floor, walked back to the cashier's cage, which is completely surrounded by desks, and isolated in the center of the spacious general business office. They fired twice into the ceiling, then commanded the 100 employes to stand up and hold up their hands. All complied.

Scale Wall

Two of the thugs scaled the 10 foot wire wall of the cage and dropped inside. The other two kept their guns trained on the employes. The cashier, George Nichol, was covered and prevented from reaching his weapon. The pair picked up satchels containing the payroll envelopes, and climbed back over the cage wall.

As they retreated backward to the head of the stairway, one of the men struck his gun in the side of the information desk operator, Miss Augusta Hagg, 21, and forced her into a corner until his comrades had passed.

At the bottom of the stairway, the four opened fire across the foyer, clearing the way to the front door. There were a dozen or more persons in the lobby, but none was in range of the bullets.

GRAND JURY GOES INTO MURDER CASE

Report on Henry Foos Slaying Not Expected Till Late Today or Thursday

A report from the special grand jury hearing the murder charge against Everett Koon, alias Cecil Dean, is not expected before late today or possibly Thursday morning. This was the opinion expressed by Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann this morning as the grand jury retired to the jury room.

Judge George R. Scofield completed his instructions to the grand jury at 9:20 o'clock this morning. The jury immediately retired to begin its deliberations.

Koon is charged with the brutal murder of Henry Foos, an aged farmer living two miles north of the city. Mr. Foos died as a result of injuries sustained when he was attacked by an assailant in his home a week ago yesterday. The prowler robbed Mr. Foos of more than $600.

Shortly after the crime Koon was captured by a posse of farmers and city and county police near the Marion County fairgrounds. He is being held in the county jail.

Although the grand jury sessions are secret and testimony given is never revealed to the public, the courtroom was filled to capacity this morning. Nor did the audience leave when the jury retired. At noon there were still a few lingering about the corridors and the courtroom.

Funeral services for the victim of the attack were held last Saturday afternoon. The funeral is said to have been one of the largest ever held in Marion County.

Mrs. George Bird, Lihene Chapel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foos, stated today that Mrs. Foos, who was also severely beaten by the intruder, is slowly recovering. The aged woman is able to leave her bed for short periods, it is said.

Program of Lively Entertainment Mapped Out For Just Kids Club Outing at Park

(By Just Kids Safety Club Editor)

ADDISON BAIN called at The Star office yesterday, kids, and made known that the entertainment he's going to offer "Just Kids Safety Club" members Monday at Crystal Lake Park, is something decidedly out of the ordinary. You'll talk about some of the stunts for weeks.

Boys who are going to play baseball must bring their own balls and bats, but the indoor balls for girls will be furnished.

The peak feature of the day will be the real, for-sure fire drill, with Mr. Bain as fire chief. Fire, water, and plenty of hose will make this as real a fire as was ever kindled in Marion. This rough and ready sport will be for the boys, but the girls will be permitted to form a bucket brigade and put out a fire.

A 28-room bird house, built last year by Mr. Bain, will be raised with great ceremony. The house stands about five feet high, is painted and finished with great care, and has been the talk of everyone who has had the privilege of seeking it. And you're going to help raise it!

Prize awards will be given for high jumping and in the swimming contest. The sand pit will be filled with pennies for the little members who won't be able to participate in the more strenuous games planned for the older boys and girls. The little airplanes are all in good condition for the smaller children, too.

Two World Wonder Dolls, sent to Mr. Bain from New York, will be at the park to amuse you. These wonderful dolls can sing, speak pieces, pray, and do almost anything you want them to do to amuse you.

You who will have wraps and lunch baskets may put them in Addison Bain's office, where they will be cared for and be ready for you when you want them.

Don't forget! You must wear your club button in order to get the free rides Monday, and you must bring your bathing suits if you're going to swim.

Marion Eagles Will Face Speedy Team At Park Sunday

DIAMOND STARS ON CELINA NINE

Heisser, Former Navy Hurler, To Face Locals on Mound; Recreation Ball Game Scheduled as Preliminary Feature

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

One of the outstanding and most consistent teams that is playing the national pastime in Ohio semi-pro circles today will be seen in action here Sunday afternoon at Lincoln Park when the Marion Eagles meet Celina.

Starting at 1 o'clock, a preliminary contest has been arranged with Butler Clothiers furnishing the main attraction. At 3 o'clock the regular game will be played.

Celina has won every game played so far this year and the city is represented by the strongest team in years. Last season Celina finished second in the Ohio-Indiana League after leading until the last of the season. This year they have defeated such teams as Springfield, Greenfield, Dayton, Hamilton and Cincinnati.

Much of their success has been due to the pitching dished out by Heisser, former moundsman on the Annapolis Naval Academy in 1923-24. He held the strikeout record in the O-I League and led in number of games won. Davis will also be available for mound duty in the contest. He is signed in the Virginia State League next year.

Noted for their flashy defensive playing, the Celina team has one of the outstanding shortstops in western Ohio in McElroy. He is not only able to field balls anywhere between second and third but is hitting for an average of 350 this year.

Third base is played by Gray who will report to Akron next year. He is an exceptionally fast player and has never had a batter beat out a bunt on his side of the diamond in three years.

In addition to having a heavy-hitting and fast-fielding outfield, the team also boasts of a slugging catcher in McComb.

When the Eagles face this team Sunday afternoon they will have a real baseball aggregation to contend with and one that will give them a real test of their strength.

JAVELIN THROWER IS TRAINING AT O. W. U

Collegiate Record Holder Seeks Berth on Olympic Team

Delaware, June 4 — Charles Stone, Payne, holder of the Ohio intercollegiate record for the javelin throw, is working out daily on Edwards Field at Ohio Wesleyan university in preparation for the Olympic tryouts to be held at the University of Cincinnati stadium, June 21 and 22.

Stone's best throw in competition has been 200 feet six inches and he is consistently throwing over 200 feet in practice this year. Stone graduated from Ohio Wesleyan last June and has not thrown in competition yet this year.

He has been teaching in the high school at Strongsville, near Cleveland, this year, and has been working out regularly there. He has returned to the university here to complete his preparations for the Olympic tryouts under the tutelage of Coach George Gauthier. Although Stone had no previous experience as a javelin thrower, he set a new Ohio record after one year of training under Coach Gauthier's coaching.

Sidney Stone, Charles' brother, a junior at Ohio Wesleyan, is also a good javelin thrower, sending the shaft about 170 feet in competition.

Rickard Will Lay Fight Plans Before Commission

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, June 6—Tex Rickard plans to apprise the New York Boxing Commission tomorrow of his "plans" for the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship fight and, four days later, he will have another story for release. He will tell when the fight is to take place. The writer, for one, can hardly wait.

In fact, my impatience is such that I am about to fool Mr. Rickard. I won't wait! Be it known, therefore, that tomorrow he will tell the board just how many seats he has in mind at $45, $30, $16.50 and so on, and, on Sunday, he will say that, after due deliberation he has decided to hold the fight at the Yankee Stadium on the night of July 26.

The citizens who hasn't heard all of this before automatically wins the curveless fish hook which only goes to show how devoutly Mr. Rickard is laboring to bring life to the dead.

Bringing Out Laughs

"Are you hearing anything about the Tunney-Heeney fight?" an official of the Madison Square Garden asked a Broadway racketeer in the elevator today. The latter said "no" and then reconsidered with the air of one who wished to be fair about the thing.

"Yes, I am," said he, finally. "I hear them laughing at it."

At the same time, I wish to deny that I am claiming the fight is dying on its feet. Such a declaration not only is inaccurate but untrue. It has never been on its feet.

However, weep not for Mr. Rickard. The right fielder who forgot his sun glasses won't need your tears, either. He will have plenty of his own and the only reason I'm mentioning the matter is that he reminds me of Mr. Rickard, who is so different. Basing the intention on the current belief that they, meaning the mugs, always turn out for the world series and heavyweight championships, it was popularly estimated around the garden today that Tunney and Heeney would gross somewhere in the neighborhood of a million dollars. If they do, Mr. Rickard will be out from under like an exposed chassis.

May Win, at That

He, in fact, stands to win several hundred thousand under those conditions, with Tunney taking some $525,000 and Heeney what he can get, including a punch on the nose.

No, Mr. Rickard never seems to be in immediate need of sympathy. He is the only promoter in the racket who can guarantee to finish in the dark ink year after year. I did hear once that Hardy Downing, of Salt Lake City, has made as much as a quarter of a million in the game but a winner like that is most exceptional. The only thing that keeps most of the boys in the field indefinitely is the inevitable "angel" who reads a few headlines and then runs out into the light of day looking for a promoter who might consent to accept money from strangers.

WHO SAYS 5c CAN'T BUY A GOOD CIGAR?

Here's One That Accepts Every Challenge

A long-filler, ripe-tobacco cigar for a lowly nickel! Isn't that just about the most amazing cigar news you've read in years? Everybody knows that real ripe tobacco is usually considered too expensive to put into five-cent cigars. But you'll find it in Havana Ribbon. No bitter, raspy under-ripe top leaves; no flat over-ripe bottom leaves. Nothing but flavory, savory fully-ripe middle leaves from heart to wrapper.

But that's not the half of it. Havana Ribbon is made of long-filler tobacco. Not "ends," "shorts" or "scraps." Bring out those nickels you've considered good only to buy newspapers with and flip 'em across the nearest cigar counter with the request for some Havana Ribbons. They'll cut down your smoke bill and raise your smoke enjoyment as never before. Also sold in Practical Pocket Packages of five cigars.

JOE DUNDEE MAY BE SUSPENDED; ACCEPTS FIGHT IN BARCELONA

New York Commission Names Sammy Baker as Logical Contender

New York, June 6—Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, is flirting with another suspension.

Joseph has accepted an offer to box Hilario Martinez, Spanish welterweight, at Barcelona on July 7 and with his pilot, Max Waxman, will sail from these shores on June 16 for the European adventure.

A ticket entitling Joseph to loaf for an indefinite period as far as New York is concerned probably will be issued by the State Athletic Commission which has produced a legitimate contender for Dundee's title in the person of Sergeant Sammy Baker.

Two weeks ago Baker defeated Nick Testo by a decision in Brooklyn in what was portrayed as a final elimination bout to develop a successor to Ace Hudkins. For many months Hudkins held the welterweight challenging rights here but Dundee was under suspension for his failure to go through with a Hudkins match in California.

The six-months time limit had expired in Dundee's case but it was automatically extended by the suspension. Then, when the champion was restored to good standing, Hudkins pulled out and made a match with Mickey Walker for the middleweight title.

Waxman doesn't rate Baker as a strong enough challenger to pull a good "gate" with Dundee and has declined to close the match.

WINS DECISION

Burst of Speed Gives Walker Victory in St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., June 6—Showing a burst of speed in the last two rounds, Mickey Walker, middleweight champion of the world, last night won a newspaper decision over Jock Malone of St. Paul.

The bout was tame and slow for the first eight rounds, neither fighter exerting himself. In the last two sessions, however, Walker speeded up, driving many hard punches to Jock's body and head.

As a boxer, Malone had the edge. He had the champion missing often, but his own blows were not heavy enough to score any points. They bounced off the toy bulldog like a tennis ball.

EARL SANDE WILL RETIRE FROM AMERICAN RACING

New York, June 6—Earl Sande, America's premier jockey, says he will retire from the turf because the necessity of taking off weight has impaired his health. He may continue his riding career on French tracks, where jockeys ride at higher weights.

LATZO TRAINS

Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 6—Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, was to begin training here today for his 10-round bout with Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., in Brooklyn a week from today. His sparring partners are Harry Fay and Eddie McMullen, lightheavyweights.

EMANUEL IS FAVORITE

New York, June 6—Armand Emanuel, coast boxer, has completed his training grind at Orangeburgh, N. Y., and returned to the city today a 6 to 5 favorite over Mike McTigue in their return bout at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

EPSOM DOWNS RA[CE] WILL BE RUN TOD[AY] ON ENGLISH TRA[CK]

Two Women Stable Own[ers] Seek Famous Derby Honors

BULLETIN

Epsom, Eng., June 6—More tha[n] a quarter of a million spectator[s] including most of the members [of] the royal family and hundreds [of] American tourists, Saw Felsten[d], an outsider, with Jockey H. Wrag[g] up, win the world famous derby [o]n Epsom Downs this afternoo[n].

Flamingo ran second and Blac[k] Watch, one of the five favorite[s] finished third. Felstead paid 33 [to] one.

The "hot favorite" of the tu[rf] experts—Lord Derby's Fairway—failed to get within the money.

Epsom, Eng., June 6—The 1[4...] derby—the most famous horse rac[e] the world—drew a record crowd, [in]cluding hundreds of American tour[ists] to Epsom Downs today. Originally [more] than 25 thoroughbreds had been ent[ered] in this classic, but three were scratc[hed].

The weather was dull this mor[ning] but the sun occasionally peeped thro[ugh] the clouds and gave hope that the gl[oom] would be dispelled before the [race] began. The track was in perfect co[ndi]tion.

Two women stable owners this [year] sought the honor of being the owne[r of] a derby winner. They were [Mrs.] Drummond, wife of Capt. Ge[orge] Drummond, banker, and Lady Rich[ard]son, wife of Sir Lewis Richardson [of] South Africa.

Mrs. Drummond entered G[o] Warily and engaged Steve Donog[hue] one of the best jockeys on the Br[itish] turf, to ride the colt. Lady Richar[dson] entered Fern Cloof and retained [J.] Cornelius as jockey.

In accordance with custom, mem[bers] of the royal family came to Epsom [to] see the race. The royal party incl[uded] King George and Queen Mary.

The race this year was worth $6[...] to the winning owner. The race [is] over the historic derby course—appr[oxi]mately one mile and one-half long. [It] was open to three-year-old colts ca[rry]ing 126 pounds and fillies carrying [121] pounds.

Lord Derby was particularly anx[ious] to win the classic this year. While [his] family founded the race it has n[ot] yet had a winning entry in the con[test].

RAIN HELPS CLUBS BUILD UP STRENGTH

Washington Senators Defeat St. Louis Browns, 4-1, in Only Game

New York, June 6—The St. Louis Cardinals, New York Yankees and other clubs which are handicapped by injuries are profiting by the rain which yesterday held most of the big league teams idle for the second day in succession. The fans are also getting a good break, for a feast of double-headers is in store for them later in the season.

In the only game played yesterday, the Washington Senators trimmed the St. Louis Brown, 4 to 1, with the aid of Braxton's good pitching and homers by Goslin and Reeves.

Cleveland, the only club which gave the Yankees a battle when the western teams of the American League invaded the east, starts a series with the world's champions today. In the National League the Cardinals will try to take second place away from New York; Cincinnati goes to Brooklyn; the Cubs invade Philadelphia and the Pirates take on the Braves.

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH AND A NERVOUS WRECK

Konjola Brought New Happiness Into Her Life, Says This Lady

MRS. JOHN WATSON

The following statement telling about the amazing relief received from Konjola was given by Mrs. John Watson, 2444 Wilcox St., Youngstown, Ohio.

"I had a complete nervous breakdown about eight years ago and could never find a medicine to help me fully recover. Weak kidneys caused a continual pain across my back and it was always so stiff and sore that for three months I could hardly move around. I was subject to frequent night risings, had severe dizzy spells and I was very nervous. I suffered a great deal with terrific headaches. I had no appetite and was just wasting away.

"I started with Konjola and it brought a new happiness into my life, when I could feel it driving away the aches and pains that I had been suffering for years. My stomach, liver and kidneys are again functioning properly and none of the above symptoms ever bother me any more. Konjola is a God-send to the suffering."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

Bargain in a Columbus high grade, well located residence. From our former success in placing high grade residences in surrounding cities of Columbus, we are offering the best bargain we have ever seen in a 9 room brick, finished third floor, complete basement, hardwood floors. Brick 2 car garage, living room above, located on one lot with an additional lot. Plenty of shrubbery.
This property has been held at $15,000 carries a first mortgage of $7,500; we intend to place it at once, at $11,500. If considering a Columbus home and you see this, you will buy.
Necessity of a little money, quickly, puts this on the market. Mortgage can stand.
We also have two or three other Bryden Road high grade residences we would be glad to show. One especially large 13 room up-to-date residence, large lot, everything that goes with it; asking $25,000, will take a farm at $12,000 to $15,000 on this property. Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Markets were quiet here today. Dealers report buying light, due to the continued rain, with prices changed little from yesterday. Ample supplies of nearly all kinds of seasonable fruits and vegetables were available. A very small supply of sweet corn on the market was selling slowly at 55 cents a dozen. The quality is only fair. New Potatoes continue to hold at five pounds for 25 cents and dealers report a steady increase in the demand as old potatoes become more undesirable. The price on old stock, however, is holding at from 25 to 35 cents a peck.

Dealers were carrying fairly large supplies of new cabbage, selling slowly at eight cents a pound. An increase in demand following a reduction in the price, is reported by dealers, however. Peas and green beans are holding at 20 cents and dealers report buying light. Cucumbers were being offered at two for 15 and 25 cents and rhubarb at three bunches for 10 cents. Icicle radishes are holding at five cents a bunch and other varieties at three bunches for 10 cents.

Watermelons were scarce, only a few being carried by dealers, who were asking from $1.25 to $1.50 each. Strawberries continue to sell at a wide range of prices. Berries of indifferent quality were selling as low as 12 cents, while selects were being offered at 20 cents. Pineapples are plentiful. Dealers are asking from $1.25 to $2.50 a dozen for canning varieties and others are selling at 15, 20 and 30 cents each.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, June 6—It may be dangerous to get too bearish on wheat today, just because it broke between 4 and 5 cents yesterday; and it may be wise to be cautious about the short side of corn, too.

Wheat closed 4⅛c to 5c down yesterday; corn was ⅞c to 1⅛c lower; oats were off ⅜c to 1⅛c, rye was down 3c to 3⅝c.

The smash in wheat was supposed to be due to rains in Canada and in our Northwest. It was really due to the bulling of wheat on sensational private reports of the condition of the Spring wheat crop after the market had had a big decline.

But all that is an old story. The question now is, what is the present condition of the market? The answer, I think, is that it is healthier than it has been in a long time.

Wheat May Be Oversold

At the close it may have been oversold, and consequently in a dangerous state for shorts.

Presuming that they liquidated wheat yesterday, they would be in a perfect position to buy it back, and more, without the annoyance of having their trades scrutinized today. If they should do this, wheat might turn right 'round and become as strong as it looked weak at the close yesterday.

The mere size of the break is enough to put the market in a technical condition that might result in a sharp advance today, even if such an upturn did not carry through the whole week.

But the really bullish grain on seems to have broken to a spot that should make it wisely purchase the board appears to be rye. That able. Not in sixteen years has there been so small a crop as is indicated for this year. Moreover, supplies of old rye are small all over the world. Months ago the government figures on these supplies were presented here, and the comment they substantiated—that before July 1 there would be little rye in sight.

Rye overlooked. It has not been heavily bought at any time, as both wheat and corn have. It is a much smaller market; but for that very reason it is likely to engender a strongly bullish situation.

Corn gave a remarkable ... of itself yesterday in the face of the weakness of ...

fact, that the short in corn may do well to exercise the utmost caution.

Corn Shows Strength

Every indication was that, even if corn is going to sell much lower than present prices before this year is out, it is not in a weak position at present. Both the July and September futures seem to be strongly held, and the December has been well bought by spreaders who have sold the other futures short.

Corn might turn up quite sharply one of these days and advance with a rush that would carry prices upward until the shorts took their medicine. The outlook for the new crop is magnificent, but the old corn is not out of the way yet; and bulls in the nearby futures still believe the brilliant prospects for new corn cannot offset the cash situation in the old, which, they believe, will grow tighter and tighter before this Summer is over.

MONEY MARKET IS UNCHANGED

Steel Production Trend Downward; Expect Loading Record

Markets at a Glance

Industrial stocks, irregular; railroad stocks, inactive; domestic bonds, steady; foreign bonds, steady; cotton, reactionary; grain steady; copper, firm; sugar, steady; oil, irregular; pig iron, steady; foreign exchange, steady.

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, June 6 — Industrial stocks were irregular and inclined to lower price levels in a dull and featureless market today. The speculative price leaders were unable to continue yesterday's brilliant advance in the face of fairly heavy profit-taking, and after reaching the highest price levels of the week, the motor, steel, copper, mercantile stocks slipped backward a point or more on the average.

Money market conditions were practically unchanged, though call money was in good supply at the renewal rate of 6 1-2 per cent, and many of the home and foreign institutions outside of the reserve system were anxious to have their funds employed at such an attractive rate. The treasury's new offering of $100,000,000 short term notes was well received, but the banks must soon begin to prepare for the July interest and dividend payments, the heaviest period of the year.

The trend of steel production is downward, according to the Iron Age's weekly summary, but the rate of recession is gradual and will not prevent the first half of 1928 from establishing a new six months' record by a margin of several hundred thousand tons. Freight car loadings for the last week reported topped a million cars, a good increase over the same period last year and building records were well maintained.

Selling pressure around the noon period increased as the result of widespread rumors that the reserve board would continue its campaign against stock speculation by raising the Chicago Reserve Bank rate to five per cent. Professionals took advantage of the opportunity to deluge the market with selling orders in Radio, General Motors and other speculative leaders.

Hoover Managers Are Confident of Complete Victory

MACHINE ROLLS ALONG; WINS 35

Moral Effect of Winning of Delegates as Important as Seats

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
Star Staff Correspondent

Kansas City, June 6 — Rolling smoothly along like a high-powered and luxurious limousine, the Hoover machine was pointed today toward a clipping and well-nigh complete victory in its first big test against the field, which was provided by the 72 delegate contests before the Republican National Committee.

Victorious on the first day, equally victorious on the second, the Hoover managers swung into the third day apparently in supreme control of the party mechanism. There appeared to be no stopping them.

The contests are half over. Thirty-seven of them have been heard and decided by committee and Hoover has won 35 of them. His managers could, in fact, have won the other two had they cared to exert their strength, but for future organization reasons they chose to seat two influential Negro leaders from Louisiana.

Moral Effect Good

The moral effect of this steady succession of victories probably is more important than the 35 seats themselves, important as they may be when the balloting stage is reached. For one thing, it has given the Hoover managers "the winning habit," and for another it has afforded them the opportunity they wanted to get their machine operating smoothly and without friction.

In comparison with the easy efficiency of the Hoover organization, the opposition has appeared unorganized and to a considerable extent leaderless. At least, there has been no unity of direction.

Kansas City is undeniably filled with party captains who do not want to see Herbert Hoover nominated next week and more of them are arriving on every train. But there is no organization among them, and there is no comprehensive plan for "stopping" him outside of the rather nebulous draft-Coolidge movement sponsored by Charles D. Hilles of New York, and the somewhat hazy plans for a gigantic mass-meeting of farmers in a tented city here during the convention.

"You can't stop something with nothing" was the rather glum summary of one anti-Hooverite.

Vote With Sentiment

The Republican National Committee, of course, is not the Republican national convention, and the fact that the Hoover forces control the committee is no conclusive proof that they can equally control the convention but the committee members are representative of the party machines in their various states, and it is a brave committeeman who deliberately flies in the face of his state sentiment. Those who do are usually not members of the committee very long.

In the case of these contests, the members have voted almost invariably in line with the known sentiment of their respective states. The committeemen from Hoover states in every instance have supported Hoover contestants; the member from anti-Hoover states like Indiana and Illinois and Iowa have invariably voted for their opponents.

A few have been found on both sides of the fence. W. M. Butler, the chairman, is one of these. Massachusetts is uninstructed, but it is expected to go for Hoover, with Butler included.

In the face of this superior Hoover organization and tactics, as revealed in one instance by seven Hoover campaign managers obtaining proxies and voting as members of the national committee, the opposition has fallen back with uncommon vigor upon the "defeatist" line of attack.

"Hoover can't be elected against Smith," is the cry of the opposition. It can be heard in every hotel lobby in Kansas City, and probably by the time the great bulk of the delegates arrive it will be in full crescendo.

Brennan's View

George Brennan, the Democratic "boss" of Illinois is being quoted as saying that Smith will carry Illinois "hands down" against Hoover in November. Other prominent Democrats are being similarly quoted, and the anti-Hoover people from the corn belt are button-holing new arrivals and telling them of the dire things that will happen to the normally Republican Middle West if Hoover is nominated next week.

The effect of this defeatist talk remains to be seen. Unquestionably it will have some effect on some delegates, but how much will not be apparent until some time next week when the convention gets going.

The talk of the Republicans losing Illinois, however, has already had one effect. It has inspired a vice presidential boomlet for Senator Charles S. Deneen of Illinois, whose political stock has risen amazingly since the Illinois primary, in which he unhorsed Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson.

Hoover and Curtis?

So supremely confident are the Hoover managers of their ability to nominate their man next week that not a few of them are giving serious consideration to the vice presidential selection.

Thus far the vice presidential talk has gone in two directions—to the East and to the West. It is argued by some that Hoover being accounted a Californian, an Eastern man must be given a place on the ticket for geographical reasons as well as for the reason that Gov. Al Smith is strong in the East. By others it is contended that second place on the ticket in any event must go to the rebellious and discontented grain belt.

"Hoover-and-Curtis" is a ticket that would be contemplated with a vast amount of satisfaction by some of the Hoover leaders. The Kansas senator voted for the McNary-Haugen bill, and then made himself a possible compromise candidate by turning around and voting to sustain President Coolidge's veto of it.

MEYER REORGANIZES FARM LOAN SYSTEM

Report of Board Contains Encouraging Note for Agriculture

Washington, June 6—A far-reaching reorganization in the farm loan system has been brought about by Eugene Meyer, former head of the War Finance Corporation, selected by President Coolidge to reshape the government's agricultural banking policies, it was disclosed today in the annual report of the Farm Loan Board.

Meyer's report contains an encouraging note for agriculture. He declared that there are indications of a turn in the tide and that "not only has the bottom of depression in farm values been reached, but that values are gradually improving. Purchasers are beginning to realize the attractive prices at which farms generally can be obtained," Meyer said.

"During 1927 the farm loan system has passed through a period of vicissitudes that have engaged the close and constant attention of the board and the farm loan bureau has undergone a thorough reorganization to meet the situation," the report added.

"A great deal of progress has been made in the way of reorganization and improvement during the year and substantial results have been achieved. For the most part the banks of the system are in good condition; a comparatively small number are confronted with situations which require vigorous attention, but their solution will be facilitated by the improvements in management and methods and the cooperation of the farm loan board."

KLEINMAIER'S

STAGE "ALL SET" FOR CONVENTION

Arrangements Completed for Entertainment of Slight of Hand Performers

For the third time in as many years, W. W. Durbin, Kenton manufacturer, state politician and internationally known amateur magician, is preparing to play host to hundreds of his brothers and sisters in the world of legerdemain, of which he is the leader, in their annual convention.

While Kenton will not be the scene of the convention proper this year as was the case in 1926 and 1927, the delegates having selected Lima for their meeting, June 7th, 8th and 9th, it will be headquarters for some of the world's most renowned magicians during the period of the meeting. Durbin's home and his private theater, Egyptian Hall, will be the scenes of busy times as many of the 1,000 delegates at the Lima meeting will take the opportunity to make the 26 mile trip to visit the home town of their leader. The convention program will include a Kenton Day, it has been announced and plans are being made to visit the Hardin County seat in a body.

From the most undeceiving parlor trick artist to the envied leaders in the realm in magic, Durbin is given the sole credit for the amazing growth and success of the International Brotherhood of Magicians. As its international president, to which office he was elected two years ago, he has skillfully directed its functionings and at the same time built an organization of 2500 members, an enrollment four times the size that was represented in the first gathering of 100 delegates in 1926. The brotherhood seeks to promote the interest in magic, establish cooperation and friendship among its followers and suppress exposure of magical secrets. It is represented in every country under the sun and enjoys the prestige of being the largest magical order ever established in the history of magic.

In addition to handling the routine duties of office as international executive of the magi, Durbin acts as editor-in-chief of The Linking Ring, the order's publication, which is sent each month to the members, hundreds of whom are in hidden-away corners of the globe.

Reports from Lima are to the effect that arrangements for the convention are being brought to rapid completion. Among the highlights will be a street parade featuring over 100 floats, a banquet for the 1,000 delegates which Governor Donahey, U. S. Senators Fess and Locher and others have been invited to attend and performances will be given each night by the greatest of the magicians at Lima's new Schine Theatre.

Election of officers for the coming year, memorial services for those of the order who have died within the last 12 months and the selection of the 1928 convention city are important items on the business program of the meeting. Ohio cities are considered as the choice among the delegates and the towns being mentioned for next year include Marion, Kenton, Lima and Findlay.

When a gossip says "It's all over town" the gossip means that it soon will be.

A [illegible] of the annual edition of "The Marionette," publication of Harding Junior High School, Oklahoma City, Okla., has been received at the Star office, accompanied by a letter from a committee representing the school.

"The Marionette," an exceptionally attractive and interesting publication, was awarded first honors in state-wide competition with school papers representing various communities in Oklahoma.

A letter accompanying the sample copy, addressed to "Publishers of the Marion Star," reads as follows:

"We, as a committee from Room 21 of Harding Junior High School, take the liberty of sending you under separate cover our final publication of the Marionette for the year 1927-28. Since we bear such a happy relation to our illustrious President Harding and his home city, we are sending this book to you, hoping you will appreciate the sentiment, if not particularly the quality. You may be interested in knowing that publication won the state championship for Junior High School papers."

The letter is signed by the committee members: Robert Moore, chairman, Virginia Anna Heninger, John W. Watt, Jr., and Marie Pauline Lewinsohn.

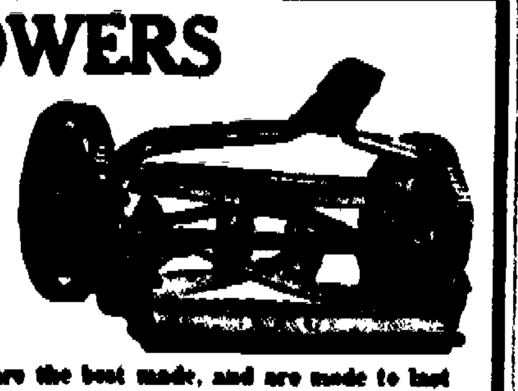

The 32 page annual edition, bound in green with cover lettering in gold, is illustrated throughout with pictures of school scenes. It is interesting to note that most of the places on the staff are filled by girls. Miss Ethelyn Brown is editor-in-chief and Miss Kewpie Jacobs, editor.

DUNLOP'S $195,000,000

"WHAT OF IT? . . . Dunlop's resources may be $195,000,000. Does that put any money in my pocket?"

Yes . . . In this way . . . Dunlop's investment is so great, it must be safeguarded. The only sure protection is to give you greater value than you can buy in any other tires.

Then, too . . . the nine mammoth plants . . . the far-flung rubber plantations . . . the great spinning mills . . . such resources enable Dunlop to build extra value into your tires.

The 40 years of experience helps too. But the biggest meaning to you of Dunlop's $195,000,000 is this: Dunlop could never have grown so great, if Dunlop tires had not only won, but held a vast army of users.

26 million Dunlop tires are now running. That bare fact is eloquent proof that you will profit by putting Dunlops on your car.

PLANE CREW SEEKS HOPPING-OFF PLACE

Plan To Leave Suva Friday for Continuation of Flight

Suva, Fiji Islands, June 7—(Thursday)—Fully rested after their hazardous and record-breaking 3,130-mile flight from Hawaii in the tri-motored Southern Cross, Capt. Kingsford-Smith and his three companions spent the time today in searching for a suitable hopping off place for their flight to Brisbane, Australia, now set for Friday.

Contrary to earlier reports, James Warner and Harry Lyon, the Americans who acted as radio operator and navigator respectively on the first two legs of the flight, will accompany Smith and his co-pilot, Charles T. P. Ulm, to Australia, it was announced here.

Between Suva and Brisbane, on the northeast coast of Australia, lies 1795 miles of ocean which the Southern Cross must traverse on the third lap of their 7800-mile course.

At the half-way mark, the big Fokker will pass over New Caledonia, largest of the markers along the course. In case of necessity, a landing might be made on this island.

From New Caledonia to the continent of Australia is open water—another 900 miles of it.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

How old do You think this Packard is?

If you are motor-wise and a keen observer, you will say that it is three years old—but that it looks like today's car because cowl lamps have been added and the visor changed to the cadet type. And you will be right.

This car is three years old, well past the time when the ordinary car is definitely a back number both in looks and performance.

The Packard Six owner usually keeps his car four years or more. He does so because it is not heavily depreciated each year by radical changes in the appearance of new models.

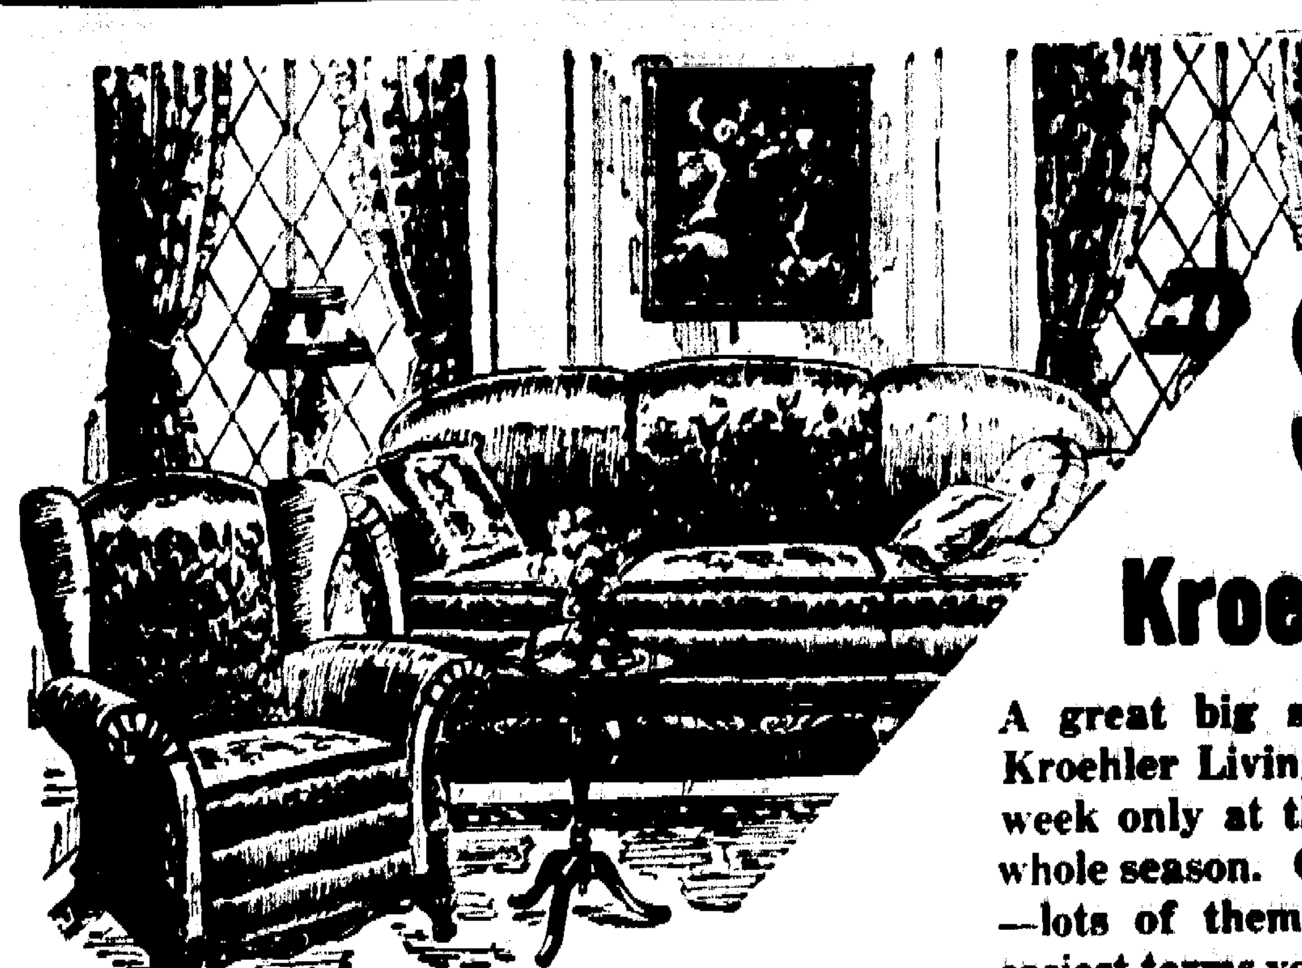

Yet occasionally an owner turns in a Packard Six like this on a Packard Eight or a different model of the Six. We have such cars for resale.

Why not buy a used Packard Six and enjoy fine car transportation at moderate cost? We have an excellent assortment at attractive prices and terms.

$100,000 DAMAGES SOUGHT BY DENTIST

Dr. R. W. Andrews, Injured in Accident at Office Here, Sues Equipment Firm

Dr. R. W. Andrews, local dentist, has filed suit in the Common Pleas Court of Cuyahoga County for $100,000 damages against the Ransom & Randolph Co., of Toledo, manufacturer of dental equipment. The suit is the outgrowth of an accident in Dr. Andrews' office Feb. 3 in which the dentist suffered injuries, resulting in the loss of the sight of his right eye.

The accident occurred when a piece of equipment used in making gold plates broke, throwing gold heated to 2,100 degrees into the right eye of the dentist. It is claimed in the plaintiff's petition that the equipment was faulty.

Dr. Andrews opened his office here Dec. 8, 1927, and less than two months later the accident occurred.

The dentist will be represented by Attorney John F. Wilson of Cleveland. Depositions of witnesses were taken here recently.

"This demonstration will be one of the most impressive events in American political history."

CHIEFS ARE GUESTS AT PARK OUTING TODAY

National Fire Prevention Society, Boston, serving in an advisory capacity. Among the questions scheduled for discussion was that of fire insurance rates and city classification. The chiefs' association has waged a constant warfare for lower insurance rates as the municipalities develop their fire departments to a higher degree of efficiency.

Chiefs of the volunteer departments met in the ballroom at the Hotel Harding with Chief W. F. Wise, of Medina, in charge and chiefs of the industrial departments in the grill room at the Harding with Chief E. E. Green, of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., of Canton, in charge.

Over 150 at Opening

Despite the rain, between 150 and 200 fire chiefs from all parts of the state met at the convention hall yesterday afternoon for the opening session of their three-day meeting. The meeting was called to order by Chief T. J. McFarland, president of the state association.

In response to an address of welcome by Mayor Earl Hazen, in which he expressed his pleasure for the opportunity of extending a welcome to the chiefs and paid them a tribute for their loyal service, Chief James E. Granger of the Cleveland department, expressed appreciation of the chiefs for the reception and expressed the belief that with a man of such sterling qualities and ability as Chief McFarland at its head, the Fire Chiefs' Association of Ohio could not help but be a success. He also complimented the city on having as the head of the department, a man of the efficiency and ability of Chief McFarland.

A committee composed of Thomas J. Gough, of Cleveland, John Grogg of Tiffin and E. E. Davis of Akron, was appointed by President McFarland on a motion of the organization, to place a wreath at the Harding Memorial this morning.

Donovan Gives Address

Because of his inability to remain over until Thursday, Edward L. Donovan, of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, of Chicago who was scheduled for an address at the Thursday morning meeting, spoke yesterday afternoon in place of W. T. Filmer, fire prevention director of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Youngstown.

Donovan, who talked on "Arson Investigations," was for 10 years associated with the office of the state fire marshal, first as an assistant and later as fire marshal. In his talk he declared that 90 per cent of the fires of incendiary origin have dollars and cents as the motive and the remaining 10 per cent are due to revenge and to the work of pyromaniacs.

Belief that by a concerted effort and with the support of their communities behind them, firemen of the state would be able to bring about the passage of legislation granting them workmen's compensation even though they do have a pension or indemnity fund, was expressed by Grant E. Mouser, Jr., assistant attorney general, who spoke on "Firemen's Pensions and Compensation."

As the workmen's compensation law stands at the present time, the speaker said, police or firemen who have a pension or indemnity fund which provides for them in case of disability, are not eligible to receive help from the state compensation fund. He expressed the belief, however, that if an organization such as the chiefs' association, backed by the moral support of their respective communities would go before the legislature, an amendment could be made to the law which would provide for police and firemen even though they have the pension or indemnity funds.

At the conclusionof Mr. Mouser's address, a committee was appointed to meet with him at the Hotel Harding last night to go further into the matter.

Chief Robert Leedom, of Portsmouth, vice president of the state association, who took charge of the meeting at this time, said he believed that firemen have been lax in their fight for compensation and urged a greater interest in getting the matter before the legislature.

Discusses Fire Prevention

Fire prevention activities by arousing interest among the business men and other leading citizens, was urged by H. L. Bond, field secretary of the National Fire Prevention Association of Boston, who talked on "Field Engineering Service of the N. F. P. A." Much could be accomplished in fire prevention if proper interest was aroused among community leaders, the speaker declared. He urged that committees be appointed to study the various phases of fire prevention and that more rigid building codes barring such hazards as shingle roofs, be adopted by communities.

W. S. Winnard, of the Ohio Inspection Bureau, who was scheduled for an address on "Fire Control," said he thought the question had been completely covered by previous speakers and he changed his talk to discussion of the history of fire departments and fire-fighting. The burning of Rome in 12 B. C. brought forth the first fire department, he said. It was in charge of one Crassus, who, when a blaze was reported to him, [illegible] with the owner of the property [illegible] how much he would pay [illegible] when it was found he was starting fires of his own.

The means of fighting fires at that time was the same than as 150 years before, in the time of Alexander. A large syringe was filled with water and shot onto the blaze by pressure on a huge bag. The first building code was created in 1666 following a $53,000,000 fire in the city of London. The code provided that nothing but stone, brick or other inflammable material could be used in the construction of buildings. The first leather hose was invented in 1770, the speaker said.

Night Program

Last night's meeting was given over to the Ohio Association of Electrical Inspectors in charge of F. O. Evertz, chief electrician of the Ohio Inspection Bureau. A large number of local electricians, as well as some from the surrounding cities, attended the meeting, which was featured by technical addresses on various phases of electrical construction.

W. M. Runyan, grounding expert of the Crouse-Hinds Co., Rochester, N. Y., talked on "The Proper Method of Grounding." Robert Shepard, electrical engineer on "Construction of Panel Boards and Proper Determination of Fuse Capacities," and M. F. Smalley, meter superintendent of the Ohio Power Co., gave a talk on a technical subject.

In addition to election of officers and reports of the various committees, Thursday morning's program will be featured with addresses by W. T. Filmer, of Youngstown, who will talk on "Are Fire Hazards Always Recognized?" J. F. Warren, manager of the Associated Factory Mutual Fire Insurance Co., of Cleveland, who will take as the subject of his talk, "Fighting Fires Before They Occur," and C. S. Magruder, of the state fire marshal's office who will talk on "Ohio's Fire Prevention Record."

signals north and south as well as east and west. As originally used, the lights showed both red or both green to north and south motorists. It was the plan of Chief of Police Thompson to alternate these lights taking one red and one green in order to avoid unnecessary stopping of traffic.

The last remaining concrete base of the old traffic signal system, at the intersection of Church and State-st. was removed by the city service department yesterday morning, four of the bases having been removed Monday.

Pilot Lights Installed

Pilot lights of the same color as the traffic lights have been installed in the desk sergeant's office at police headquarters, enabling the sergeant to tell at all times if the signals are working properly. The sergeant will also be able, by throwing a switch in the control box, to hold all of the lights on the number in case of a run by the fire department or in some other emergency.

The signals are arranged to alternate in such a manner that a motorist, by driving 15 miles an hour, can travel through all of the intersections without stopping.

Making Progress

Interest in a city airport has taken considerable strides in the past few weeks, it is disclosed here. Efforts are being considered, it is said, to approach a group of wealthy Marion men on the proposition of giving the city an airport.

Investigation of Ohio laws also reveals that cities have the authority to issue bonds for the purchase of airport ground.

Article 22 of Section 3939, of House Bill, No. 1, passed by the General Assembly of Ohio April 21, 1927, authorizes municipalities to issue bonds "to purchase or condemn land necessary for landing fields, either within or without the limits of the municipality, for aircraft and transportation terminals and uses associated or incident thereto, and the right-of-way for connections with highways, electrical, steam and interurban railroads, and to improve and equip same with structures necessary or appropriate for such purposes."

Had we had doubt about the course of the United States in Nicaragua, it would have been removed by the action of the European socialists in passing a resolution condemning it. Whatever course they condemn, this country may safely follow.

The directorate of the "Corn Belt" demonstration in behalf of former Governor Lowden of Illinois is made up of seven lawyers, two contractors, one newspaper man, one oil producer, one orchardist, two whose professions could not be learned and one farmer, which is just about the ratio, the country over, of bogus farmers to real in the movement for farm relief.

A Washington income tax consultant has sued Senator James Couzens for $500,000 damages for alleged slanders uttered by the senator in a speech in the senate, challenging the senator's right to immunity for the reason that the alleged slanderous statements were not pertinent to any pending legislation. The senatorial practice of slandering people has become so common that some relief from it should be afforded, but it probably will not be in the near future, more's the pity.

A Successful Flight to Australia.

The reading public has been so intent in following "The Southern Cross" and the quartet of daring souls manning her in the attempt to span the Pacific from Oakland to Sydney, so enrapped in contemplation of the two amazingly splendid flights the giant Fokker monoplane has made, that there is possibility that it has entirely overlooked an other great air adventure which came to an end last Friday, when four British air force super-marine flying battleships reached Broome, West Australia, from England.

The four heavy fighting ships left Plymouth the 15th of last October and made the trip by easy stages, stopping off at Suez, Bombay, Calcutta, Singapore and Java. They will cruise about Australia for a time, later going to Hong Kong and back to Singapore, where they are to have their base of operations. The officers of the flight, which is under command of Wing Commander Cave-Browne-Cave, will confere with air authorities of Australia, which has recently purchased a number of planes of the same type.

The four air boats are not at present armed, but they are designed so that they they may be quickly fitted out with formidable bombing equipments and light guns. They are so constructed that they can alight upon the water in rough weather and ride the waves and take off again when desirable. Sleeping quarters are provided for the crews and there are also cooking facilities aboard.

There was a time, and it was not so long ago, that we Americans dwelt serene in the thought that we were so isolated by the two great oceans as to be practically immune from air attack by any transoceanic power. We can not today feel so complacent. When Lindbergh conquered the Atlantic he undermined that complacency, although we may not have realized it at the time. Events since have further demonstrated the folly of such a feeling. It has been brought home to us that we are no longer immune, and the time is at hand when we must consider, as we have not in the past considered, the absolute need of adequate defense against air attacks by a foreign foe.

Let us not again succumb to the utterly fallacious view that it is time to begin preparations for trouble when trouble starts. Following that course has cost us thousands upon thousands of sturdy young lives and billions upon billions of dollars. Let us profit by experience, rather than suffer from it.

A Splendid Purchase.

There are three phases of the announced purchase by the board of education of a site for a new junior high school building just a bit to the north of the Green Camp pike and near the western edge of the city which are especially pleasing to this newspaper.

The first is the location of the site, which should always be, as it manifestly was in the present case, a matter for deep consideration. We recall the building of a school house on a sit out by the ball park, back in the days when Marion had a professional ball team the location of which became a matter of rather general comment and not a little criticism. It was urged that the building was being erected "out in the country." As a matter of fact it was pretty well out among the tilled fields. It was even covertly hinted that a shrewd real estate dealer had put one over on the school board. The truth is that the location proved above all else that the board had exercised judgment of high order in purchasing the site, as time has proved. Today that building is crowded, despite the fact that other buildings have been erected in that general territory to afford relief from overcrowding, and we believe that time will demonstrate that the school board exercised judgment in buying the present new site.

Another phase of the purchase which appeals to us is that it manifests a policy on the part of the board of education to look ahead to future needs and buy while the realty desired can be purchased at a reasonable figure. This fine tract of something over six acres consisting of a hill overlooking all the surrounding territory—an ideal location for a school building as regards elevation as well as location—was bought by the board for $9,400, which to our way of thinking is a splendid illustration of the worth of the board's policy.

The third pleasing phase to us is that the site has been paid for out of funds the school board had on hand from money saved during the last year or two as the result of careful figuring and economies practiced by the board. There are so many utterly futile ways in which public money may be expended that it is positively refreshing to learn that we have here one body which had money to spend and yet did not fritter it away, but saved it until the total was such as to enable the board to invest it in a needed site for a new building. This last phase of the transaction has special appeal to us. It shows a conservation of public funds for which the board of education is to be commended.

The word has gone out that "Who but Hoover?" is to be the slogan of the secretary's supporters at Kansas City. The danger of a slogan like that is that some unregenerate Democrat may slip in and yell, "Al. Smith!"

The endurance record of fifty-eight hours and thirty-seven minutes in the air made by two Italian officers, Major Artaro Ferrarin and Captain Carlo del Prete, Saturday, was broken Monday by Adjutant Louis Crooj and Sergeant Pilot Victor Broenen, two Belgian airmen who remained aloft sixty hours and eight minutes. What price glory, anyway?

Incensed because the court of appeals upheld a judgment secured against him by his attorney for legal services, a Baltimore man shot his lawyer to death. It's hardly a system of debt settlement which can be recommended without reservation.

The collector of the port of New York has suspended eighteen customs guards for alleged collusion with liquor smugglers. For some time there has been a sort of suspicion that some customs guards were endeavoring to transform our great national desert into an oasis.

Unsound Kidneys Need Care.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Through the kidneys pass nearly one-half of all the waste products of the body. Since all body wastes, and especially such as go through the kidneys, are poisons, you can see how necessary it is that there shall be no interruption to their passage.

In Bright's disease the function of the kidneys is disturbed, and no longer can they eliminate the nitrogen products, known to the doctors as urea, uric acid and ammonia. If the disease can not be relieved speedily, there must be an immediate reduction in the intake of foods rich in nitrogen.

At the same time, the life of the patient must be so regulated that there will be the least possible demand for protein food. This means placing a limitation upon the amount of physical exertion.

I have explained to you that food is taken for two purposes: to supply energy and to keep the tissues in repair. The latter function is performed by the protein. Of the proteins, the best examples are lean meat the whites of eggs.

In the severe and acute forms of Bright's disease, milk may be the only food safe to give. Even this may be too rich in protein. Water should be administered freely. To this may be added sugar, cereals, gruel and, possibly, bread. Buttermilk and oatmeal may be useful.

If milk is well borne it will supply all the nourishment needed. As the case progresses, vegetables may be added, and in due time, perhaps, a limited amount of meat.

The chronic form of Bright's disease is a difficult condition to treat. It lasts for years and the diet must be regulated carefully all this time.

There is a choice in the method of cooking the meat. Since the juices seem to contain the harmful elements, broiled and roasted meat, and meat soups are to be avoided. Boiled meat, especially if twice boiled, is far safer, even if less palatable.

Ham contains much less protein than beef, but, of course, it has enough to be avoided. Oysters are low in protein content, as also are salmon, and some of the other fish, except cod and shad, and may be taken in moderation.

Fruits and green vegetables, the cereals and other carbohydrates, including sugar and the starches—milk, cream, sweet cider, unfermented fruit juices, vichy, tea and coffee in moderation, the yolk of the egg, potatoes—all these are safe to give.

The bowels must be kept open and the skin must be active. Frequent baths, gentle exercise, warm climate and mental poise are helpful.

With proper care and diet, the natural expectation of life may be looked forward to if the treatment is begun early. A long and useful life may be counted on if the right care is exercised.

Please bear in mind that we have been discussing diet in the treatment of actual disease of the kidneys. Do not form the opinion that I look upon meat eating as a hazardous procedure for healthy persons. I do not so regard it.

It used to be thought that excessive meat eating is responsible for Bright's disease. That is believed no longer. Infection from pus centers or from fever are the chief factors contributing to this ailment.

For persons in good health meat and other proteins are very essential to the bodily welfare.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

COMMUNISTIC ACTIVITY.

Communistic activity goes forward. An American soviet is urged by Communist leaders. The loud demand for destruction of the capitalist class still finds place in the platform of the party which advocates the rabid principles of red Russia.

A few days ago William Z. Foster was nominated for president of the United States at the national convention of the Workers (Communist) party by the 3,000 party members and delegates there in attendance.

Foster is a former I. W. W. leader and organized the steel strike of 1918. He has always been a irreconcilable industrial revolutionist.

Ben Gitlow, formerly sent to prison for violation of the New York syndicalist law, was nominated for vice president.

These men are the representatives of America's "red radicals." The platform which was adopted by the convention, and on which they stand, calls for the overthrow of the capitalist class, the recall of American troops from China and Nicaragua and the establishment of a five-day, forty-hour week in labor.

Said Foster, addressing what is described as having been one of the noisiest radical demonstrations ever staged in America: "We must build a soviet government in the United States. It will come, and behind it will stand a red army."

He is said to have warned the "workers" of the danger of an "imperialistic" war and advised them to turn it into a civil war for the establishment of communism.

And William Z. Foster finds much to aid and comfort in the United States senate and among the churches of America! He preaches frank revolution, seditions, treason to the principles of republican government and the formulas of social customs as enjoyed by the so-called capitalistic countries of the world—in America!

Foster should be sent to enjoy his political philosophy where his fellow-worker and former compatriot, Haywood, found so much of distinction and earthly bliss—to Russia, the industrial paradise which American Communists personally avoid as the devil is said to avoid sanctified water.

The American worker will not easily be beguiled by the seductions of a professional disturber of the Foster-Gitlow class.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHERE BLAME RESTS

A few days ago at Washington, before the American Society of International Law, George W. Wickersham placed the blame for "shocking miscarriage of justice" squarely on the shoulders of congress and the state legislatures.

These bodies he held responsible for "the delays, perversions and miscarriages of justice" which characterize American criminal law. He deplored "their failure to build up a courageous judiciary, as is necessary to withstand the popular clamor of the moment and maintain such a vigorous and impartial enforcement of the criminal law as will make justice both sure and swift."

In this view the greater legal minds of the country probably heartily agree, though some among them might be reluctant to say so with the former attorney general's candor.

Congress and the state legislatures grind out laws as steadily as the printing establishments of the publishers of books grind out "best sellers of the week." It has come down to that. Formerly "best sellers" were simply best sellers.

And this flood of laws of every kind and description—conflicting, contradictory, inept, useless, complex, dangerous—makes most certainly for "shocking miscarriage of justice."

With fewer laws, an honest electorate and the establishment of courts immune to the influence of the mob we shall begin to approximate that ideal which is incorporate in the best conception of democratic free government.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

New Light on Mars.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The opinion is rapidly gaining among astronomers that Mars is a ... Nobody is found now deriding ... long championed by the late Percival ... on that subject. To be sure, ... picture of Martian inhabitants of ... intelligence and unparalleled engineering ... transforming the face of the ... gigantic systems of irrigating canals ... from the melting polar snows ... alternately northward and southward ... still not taken seriously, but the ... idea that Mars bears living things upon ... surface has at last found standing ... respectful treatment in the halls of ... science.

The result is what ... have been reached long ago, ... and persistent application of the ... wonderful new weapons of astronomical investigation to questions concerning the ... of all the celestial bodies—nearest in more senses than that of simple propinquity—the planets of our solar system, brothers and sisters of the earth in the great isolated family which ... head and parent is known as the sun. The earth derives its chief interest from the fact that there is life upon it. Then what more interesting problem can there be for astronomy to deal with than of the existence or non-existence of life on those other near-by and related worlds?

A new method of investigation has proved to be very effective in the study of the atmospheric conditions on Mars. This consists in the use of infra-red and ultra-violet photography; i. e., photographing in the one case with light-waves beyond the red end of the spectrum and in the other case with those beyond the violet end. The result is something like what is achieved in photographing the sun with the spectroheliograph, which selects out of the whole radiation of the sun the particular wave lengths that it is desired to use in making a picture of the solar disk.

Dr. W. H. Wright, of the Lick observatory, lately presented to the National Academy of Science a summary of what this new method has achieved in its application to Mars. The infra-red photographs show the surface of the planet marked with dark streaks and other markings, not identical, however, with the so-called canals revealed by photographs taken in ordinary light. But the ultra-violet pictures give an entirely different view, which evidently represents the atmosphere of Mars at an elevation as high as 15,000 feet above its surface. In these pictures the white polar caps are seen shining through, together with brightly illuminated regions, probably white clouds, but there are also blurred masses which fog the surface below, and the precise nature of which is unknown. They are apparently of different composition from the vaporous clouds in our air.

In the infra-red photographs, on the other hand, yellowish patches have been seen, which being clearly in motion across the face of the planet were taken to be clouds of some kind. Dr. Wright is quoted as being of the opinion that these objects are "low-hanging clouds of water vapor, resembling our own clouds, and appearing yellow because of the gases in the atmosphere of Mars acting as a yellow screen." This, it is assumed, would serve to explain the yellowish color of Mars as ordinarily seen. Changes in the markings shown by the infra-red pictures may, it is admitted, be due to vegetation.

Other evidence has been obtained showing that temperature conditions which in themselves would be tolerable to animal life, as we know it on the earth, prevail on Mars, notwithstanding its relatively great distance from the sun—140,000,000 miles, against 93,000,000 for the earth. We have to judge these things by the limiting conditions of life on the earth simply because we know no other life. But we don't know everything.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

Ethelbert Nevin—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

One of the best loved and best known of the American composers, Ethelbert Nevin, was born in Edgeworth, Pennsylvania, on November 25, 1862.

Nevin undoubtedly inherited his musical talent from his mother, who is credited with being the first, in that section of the country to have a grand piano.

In 1877 the boy was taken abroad by his father, where he studied for two years in Dresden, under von Bohme. Returning to the United States he studied further under Lang and Emery in Boston.

Returning to Pittsburgh, Nevin taught music for several years until he had saved sufficient money to take a thorough musical course in Berlin.

In 1884 he went to Berlin, where he studied under von Bulow, Bil and Klindworth, and to the latter teacher Nevin ascribed nearly all of his musical ability.

His restless nature did not permit Nevin to stay very long in one place, so he returned to America, settling in Boston. A few years later he went to Paris, resuming his career as teacher.

After a series of concert tours, and recitals in America, he suffered a nervous breakdown, which caused a temporary retirement from public life. However, in 1894 he was again heard on the concert stage.

Nevin's restless spirit carried him far. In rapid succession he visited Florence, Venice, Paris, then back to America. Settling in New Haven, which seemed to carry promise of a permanent position in America, his interesting career was suddenly cut short by death, which occurred on February 17, 1901.

His death was undeniably hastened by overwork. Untiring in his compositions, restless and traveling constantly, the nervous strain under which he labored, all took their toll of his health.

Nevin's playing on the concert stage was most delightful. While he did not rank with the masters, yet his poetic conception and delightful interpretations made him a favorite.

Nevin was at his best in the smaller forms of music. His songs will live always in the hearts of music lovers. One writer has said that "his piano works have all the poetry of Schumann; and his songs are like the lieder of the best German writers."—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

BILL EXPECTED TO DIE NATURAL DEATH

Muscle Shoals Measure and Three Others Seem Doomed to Failure

Washington, June 6—The Muscle Shoals bill hung in the balance today with every indication that it will die by pocket veto.

Unless President Coolidge signs it by tomorrow, Congress' latest effort to dispose of the troublesome problem will fail, and the big power and nitrate project will remain idle.

Three other measures also seem doomed to fail. One would give veterans civil service preference, another contemplates a five-year building program for the bureau of fisheries, and the third would restore a dismissed midshipman to the naval academy.

NOT TO RACE

Wilkins and Byrd To Co-operate in Polar Explorations

New York, June 6—Capt. George Wilkins will not race Commander Richard E. Byrd to the South Pole when the two Antarctic expeditions start early next year, according to Dr. Isaih Bowman, president of the American Geographical Society. The society is co-operating with the explorers in their plans to survey the unexplored territory east of the ice barrier.

Captain Wilkins and Commander Byrd will cooperate with each other instead of staging a race to the pole, Dr. Bowman said in a statement issued here. Byrd plans to fly beyond the pole from the base of the ice barrier. Wilkins will not make a flight to the pole but will fly over the opposite side of the territory which Byrd intends to explore, according to Dr. Bowman.

Pershing Amused at Report of Presidential Nomination

Cherbourg, France June 6—Reports current from time to time that the name of Gen. John J. Pershing might be placed before the Republican national convention in Kansas City next week held on special interest for the famous American soldier when he sailed at midnight for New York on the liner Leviathan. Arrangements for the general's departure had been conducted so quietly they were almost a secret. He was asked if his return had anything to do with rumors that he would be a candidate for the nomination for president. General Pershing laughed as he replied:

"Any one in the public eye today might be called a 'dark horse.' But I assure you that in my own case I am returning merely to look after personal affairs."

Girl Flier's Sweetheart is "Nervous as a Witch"

BOSTON, June 6—The "girl Lindy's" sweetheart was as "nervous as a witch" today waiting for the hop off from Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, on the transatlantic plane Friendship.

Samuel Chapman of Marblehead, fiance of Miss Amelia Earhart, said that it was "the sort of nervousness that creeps over you when you know a loved one is taking a long chance."

The Boston engineer revealed his "Lindy lady" as a "real girl" who does not powder or paint, quiet, modest, charming winning, sweet. "Who wouldn't love such a girl?" he asked.

The couple first met in Los Angeles, where Miss Earhart learned to fly and she often dropped love notes to the building where he was employed as a chemist.

Chapman said he was confident that Miss Earhart would win. When the flight is on Chapman said he would be with his sweetheart's mother in Medford "praying for her success."

Miss Earhart, it was learned today, is a descendant of an old Philadelphia Quaker family. But the busy 29 years that Miss Earhart has lived would make the Quaker maids of years ago shake in their shoes.

Her grandfather was born in Homer, Cortland County, New York, but went to Kansas when a young man. Miss Earhart's father, Edwin S. Earhart, was born in Mercersburg, Pa., and studied law at the University of Pennsylvania. As a railroad attorney he took his family to many parts of the country, Amelia being born at Atchison, Kansas. She attended a number of schools and learned to fly in California when she was 19 years old.

FORMER LEADER IS STILL LIVING TODAY

Chang Weak from Wounds Received in Bomb Attack on Train

London, June 6—Marshal Chang Tso Lin, former dictator of the Peking government of China, who was wounded in a bomb attack while fleeing to Mukden, Manchuria, was still alive early today, but in a very weakened condition, said a Tokio dispatch to the Evening News. Chang was in the Mukden palace surrounded by his entire family (or families)—five wives and 16 children.

Propped up in an improvised throne which was flanked by two huge, stuffed Manchurian tigers, Chang addressed his wives and children telling them to be of good cheer. He said he was sure that he would recover from his wounds and that the sunshine of victory would blaze upon the banners of his army before many months had passed.

Through Colonel Dihara, one of his advisers, Chang issued the following public statement:

"I am all right. Tell my people not to worry. I have escaped too many times to fall victim to any plots at this time."

Officers For Year Chosen by Epworth Church Society

Election of officers for the coming year and transaction of routine business for the year just closing took place at the meeting of members of the Young Woman's Missionary Society of Epworth M. E. Church last night at the home of Miss Grace Thompson, Green Camp-pk. About 40 members were present.

During the business session Miss Lucille Callahan was chosen president; Miss Mildred Ruhl, first vice president; Mrs. Malcolm Severns, second vice president; Miss Etta Carter, treasurer; Mrs. Claude Dayton, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter Baker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ray Eaton, mite box secretary, and Mrs. Ramon Cram, secretary of supplies.

Reports Submitted

Miss Beulah Smith, treasurer, reported a balance of $84 at the close of the year. The birthday secretary, Miss Margaret Adams, reported a balance of $44 on birthdays for the year, and Mrs. Stewart Vermillion, mite box secretary, reported a balance of $167 for the total mite box opening sum.

Plans were made for attending a Young Woman's Conference Rally at Prospect, Wednesday, June 12. Miss Mary Horseman will serve as delegate.

The business session and program followed a picnic supper. Mrs. Vermillion opened the program, following a period of songs, with scripture reading. Two numbers, "Here Am I, Send Me" and "Sweeter as the Years Go By," were sung by a quartet comprised of Mrs. Cram, Mrs. Otto Long and Misses Gobius Bolander and Della Larson. Miss Helen French gave two readings, "Raiding the Treasury" and "I Want To Go to Morrow" and the program closed with a song. The next meeting will be in September.

PICNIC PLANNED

Plans were made for a picnic to be held next month when members of the Philathea and Baraca Bible Class of Fite Memorial Church met last night in the church parlors. Charles Osterholt was elected chairman to make arrangements for the picnic. Musical selections were played by Floyd Williams and Charles Paine. LeRoy Rhodebeck was a guest of the class. Following the meeting refreshments were served.

ELECTION HELD

Miss Katherine Hecker Chosen Head of Church Society

Miss Katherine Hecker was elected president of the Standard Bearers Society, Prospect Street M. E. Church, at the business and social meeting of members of that organization last night at the home of Misses Frieda and Minnie Wanner, S. Pearl-st. Miss Ruth Schott was elected vice president; Miss Helen Grossglaus, secretary; Mrs. Reba Musgrave, corresponding secretary; Miss Hildegarde Wanner, treasurer; Miss Mary Ellen Kerr, pianist, and Miss Pauline Hecker, assistant pianist. THE YEAR'S MOST BAFFLING SERIAL STORY

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

What Has Happened So Far

John Cavendish invites Hastings, an old friend, home on sick leave to spend a month at Styles owned by his step-mother, who recently married Alfred Inglethorp, who is hated and suspected. John, his wife Mary, and brother Lawrence. Soon after Hastings' arrival, Evie Howard gives her opinion to Mrs. Inglethorp of the new husband as a ... and leaves, begging Hastings to look out for Mrs. Inglethorp who she says is surrounded by sharks after her money. ... Murdoch, a protegee of Mrs. Inglethorp's works in a dispensary and discusses poisons with ... and Hastings. Dr. Bauerstein, a London specialist, ... attracted to Mary Cavendish. Hastings runs across M. Poirot, an old friend and a celebrated detective. Mrs. Inglethorp has a row with her husband. Bauerstein makes a late call. Mrs. Inglethorp goes to bed carrying a cup of untasted coffee in her ... and Inglethorp goes out with the Doctor, telling John no one ... up for him as he has a key. Hastings is awakened ... night by John. They go to ... mother's room. She cries in a strangled voice—"Alfred—Alfred!" and falls back dead. Dr. Bauerstein insists with the local practitioner that an inquest is necessary. Hasting asks John to let M. Poirot investigate his mother's mysterious death. Lawrence disapproves but John overrules him. Inglethorp returns and pretends great grief. Poirot discovers six clues in the murdered woman's room and extracts a small piece of half charred paper from the grate. One of the maids tells him of an overheard quarrel between husband and wife and a warning she received from Mrs. Inglethorp never to trust a man. Hastings concludes that a cup of coco brought to Mrs. Inglethrop late at night had been poisoned with strychinne. But Poirot disagrees and Hastings losses confidence in him.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER 10

POIRET was surveying me with quietly twinkling eyes.

"You are not pleased with me, mon ami?"

"My dear Poirot," I said coldly, "it is not for me to dictate to you. You have a right to your own opinion, just as I have to mine."

"A most admirable sentiment," remarked Poirot, rising briskly to his feet. "Now I have finished with this room. By the way, whose is the smaller desk in the corner?"

"Mr Inglethorp's."

"Ah!" He tried the roll top tentatively. "Locked. But perhaps one of Mrs. Inglethorp's keys would open it." He tried several, twisting and turning them with a practised hand, and finally uttering an ejaculation of satisfaction "Voila. It is not the key, but it will open it at a pinch."

He slid back the roll top, and ran a rapid eye over the neatly filed papers. To my surprise, he did not examine, merely remarking approvingly as he relocked the desk: "Decidedly, he is a man of method, this Mr. Inglethorp!"

A "man of method" was, in Poirot's estimation the highest praise that could be bestowed on any individual.

I felt that my friend was not what he had been as he rambled on disconnectedly:

"There were no stamps in his desk, but there might have been eh mon ami? There might have been? Yes"—his eyes wandered round the room—"this boudoir has nothing more to tell us. It did not yield much. Only this."

He pulled a crumpled envelope out of his pocket, and tossed it over to me. It was rather a curious document. A plain, dirty looking old envelope with a few words scrawled across it, apparently at random. The following is a facsimile of it:

possessed
I am possessed
He is possessed
I am possessed
possessed

"Where did you find this?" I asked Poirot, in lively curiosity.

"In the waste-paper basket. You recognize the handwriting?"

"Yes, it is Mrs. Inglethorp's. But what does it mean?"

Poirot shrugged his shoulders.

"I cannot say—but it is suggestive."

A wild idea flashed across me. Was it possible that Mrs. Inglethorp's mind was deranged? Had she some fantastic idea of demoniacal possession? And, if that were so, was it not also possible that she might have taken her own life?

I was about to expound these theories to Poirot, when his own words distracted me.

"Come," he said, "now to examine the coffee cups!"

"My dear Poirot! What on earth is the good of that, now that we know about the coco?"

"Oh, la la! That miserable coco!" cried Poirot flippantly.

He laughed with apparent enjoyment, raising his arms to heaven in mock despair, in what I could not but consider the worst possible taste.

"And, anyway," I said, with increasing coldness, "as Mrs. Inglethorp took her coffee upstairs with her, I do not see what you expect to find, unless you consider it likely that we shall discover a packet of strychnine on the coffee tray!"

Poirot was sobered at once.

"Come, come, my friend," he said, slipping his arm through mine. "Ne vous fachez pas! Allow me to interest myself in my coffee cups, and I will respect your coco. There! Is it a bargain?"

He was so quaintly humorous that I was forced to laugh; and we went together to the drawing room, where the coffee cups and tray remained undisturbed as we had left them.

Poirot made me recapitulate the scene of the night before, listening very carefully, and verifying the position of the various cups.

"So Mrs. Cavendish stood by the tray—and poured out. Yes. Then she came across to the window where you sat with Mademoiselle Cynthia. Yes. Here are the three cups. And the cup on the mantel-piece, half drunk, that would be Mr. Lawrence Cavendish's. And the one on the tray?"

"John Cavendish's. I saw him put it down there."

"Good. One, two, three, four, five—but where, then, is the cup of Mr. Inglethorp?"

"He does not take coffee."

"Then all are accounted for. One moment, my friend."

With infinite care, he took a drop or two from the grounds in each cup, sealing them up in separate test tubes, tasting each in turn as he did so. His physiognomy underwent a curious change. An expression gathered there that I can only describe as half puzzled, and half relieved.

"Bien!" he said at last. "It is evident! I had an idea—but clearly I was mistaken. Yes, altogether I was mistaken. Yet it is strange. But no matter!"

And, with a characteristic shrug, he dismissed whatever it was that was worrying him from his mind. I could have told him from the beginning that this obsession of his over the coffee was bound to end in a blind alley, but I restrained my tongue. After all, though he was old, Poirot had been a great man in his day.

"Breakfast is ready," said John Cavendish, coming in from the hall. "You will breakfast with us, Monsieur Poirot?"

Poirot acquiesced. I observed John. Already he was almost restored to his normal self. The shock of the events of the last night had upset him temporarily, but his equable poise soon swung back to the normal. He was a man of very little imagination, in sharp contrast with his brother, who had, perhaps, too much.

Ever since the early hours of the morning, John had been hard at work ... [illegible]

... to buoy yourself up with any false hopes. Can you tell me the views of the other members of the family?"

"My brother Lawrence is convinced that we are making a fuss over nothing. He says that everything points to its being a simple case of heart failure."

"He does, does he? That is very interesting—very interesting," murmured Poirot softly. "And Mrs Cavendish?"

A faint cloud passed over John's face.

"I have not the least idea what my wife's views on the subject are."

The Heart Story of a Womans Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Stands Between Home and Professional Life

UNAWARE of the explosive shell he inadvertently had dropped into our plans, Dr. Havens hurried away to his next patient. Dicky accompanied him to the door, and Lillian, who had heard our colloquy, drew me hastily into her rooms and shut her door.

"Look here!" she said earnestly. "Don't you trot out a martyr complex over this thing. Of course Dicky's going to emit a few great theories on the spur of the moment, but you stay noncommittal until you have a chance to thrash the thing out with yourself. Incidentally I have the glimmering of a plan, and I'll just stick around in your vicinity ready to smash an oar over Dicky's head if he starts to rock the boat.

"I know I'm the original Meddlesome Matty," she went on, and waved away my indignant protest. "That's what the Dicky-bird would say if he knew I were talking this way to you. But there's surely some way out even if your work is in the city and the doctor says Junior must stay in the country this Winter."

"No matter what else, he must do that," I said firmly. "I suppose I shall have to give up my——"

Lillian clapped an efficient hand over my mouth.

"If you dare even to breathe that thought again, I'll brain you," she said. "But of course you're neither responsible nor yet quite sane just now. And nobody could expect you to be either. Go back to Junior and stay with him. Katherine can be depended on to ban any discussion before him, and please keep away from any discussions with Dicky of plans for the Winter until I get a chance to consult the stars and catch a horoscope. Beat it, quick!"

The last three words were in a sibilant whisper as we heard the front door close after Dr. Havens. I knew that Dicky would be up the stairs again in no time, and I scuttled into Junior's room, my head in a whirl of indecision.

I could not keep up my work in Mr. Veritam's organization without spending at least five days a week in the city during the Winter. Dr. Havens said that Junior must stay in the country. There was no question of a ... [illegible]

... school days of the week he really would not need me if Katherine continued the care of him which she had promised in order that I might have my chance at outside professional work. I had no use for common sense at that moment, however, and if the physician's injunction for quiet had not been fresh in my memory, I know that I should have startled my small son by hysterically assuring him that I would not leave him for a single minute during the Winter.

Curiously enough it was Dicky himself, who exercised the hysteria from my brain and replaced it by a common sense attitude, which had its origin—in part at least—in resentment at the lordly manner in which he made my plans for me. Upon the third day after Junior's fall the little boy was sitting up and enjoying the slavish adulation of his grandparents, Dicky's mother and my father, who were spelling each other in story telling for amusement. I had come to the conclusion, mortifying to my vanity, but a relief to my conscience, that my small son would not suffer were I to be away from him the entire Winter, even without week-ends, and going out of the room upon an errand for my mother-in-law, I met Dicky, evidently in search of me.

"I'm glad I've found you," he said. "I've wanted to catch you alone for days. Come in here."

He threw open the door of his own room, and when I had entered, closed it again and drew out a chair for me with his habitual courtesy.

"Of course you're going to throw up that damned job and stay out here with Junior this Winter," he said with a complacent maddening little smile.

TOLL GATE DAYS

NEEDLESS to say, there has been remarkable evolution and development in public thoroughfares of Marion County in the last 50 years. The change has kept step with development of transportation methods.

Back in 1883, for example, the road connecting Marion and Waldo was a "turnpike" maintained by toll charges. Toll gates were stationed along the route and fees collected from all travelers.

All excepting ministers of the Gospel and a few other citizens exempt from assessments.

In going through a collection of old papers at his home on S. Prospect st. several days ago, Dr. F. H. Raffensperger came across a reminder of the old tollgate days. It was a "pass" for free use of the road issued to his father, Rev. F. B. Raffensperger then pastor of the Presbyterian Church here.

Written on an official letterhead of "J. E. Davids Attorney at Law, Notary Public and Justice of the Peace" and dated July 28, 1883, it reads as follows:

"To the Keepers of the gates on the Marion and Waldo Turn Pike Road.

"The bearer, Rev. E. B. Raffensperger, is a regular ordained minister of the Gospel located at Marion, Ohio, who is entitled to the free use of our road as such minister.

"J. E. Davids, sec'y, Marion & Waldo Pike."

In those days and for about 10 years thereafter, the only public transportation service between Waldo and Marion was a horse-drawn bus driven by Harmon Hull, pioneer Waldo resident. He made daily trips between the two points and invariably had a full load of passengers.

His business went on the rocks when the Short Line railroad, later acquired by the Pennsylvania, was constructed between Columbus and Sandusky.

Now automobile transportation has forced the Pennsylvania to abandon all but one or two of its daily passenger trains. And so it goes, with airplanes probably next in trend toward greater speed.

TIME ABOUT UP

WORD comes from no less authority than Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown that midnight, June 15, is when the time expires for filing declarations of candidacy preliminary to the August primary.

It seems a published report announced that Brown's office had fixed June 12 for the final date. This is emphatically denied by the secretary of state.

With the closing period drawing near its finish, the Marion County board of Elections is accumulating an interesting collection of candidates' declarations. There are entries now for practically every county office, with unusually spirited contests assured in several. It's going to be a campaign eclipsing in interest any witnessed here for a number of years, according to present indications.

OLD-TIME SPEECH

DECORATION DAY this year brought to M. B. Chase, veteran Marion attorney and real estate dealer, memories of a similar event 45 years ago when he delivered an address in connection with a program here.

The original copy of the oration is still in Mr. Chase's possession. The speech is a discussion of the progress made following effecting of peaceable relationship between the North and South.

Mr. Chase, who for many years was identified with community activities here, recently returned from Lansing, Mich., where he visited his daughter, Mrs. John Krause.

ANNUAL EVENTS

MENTION of Decoration Day brings to mind comment made by Rev. M. H. Lichliter, D. D., Columbus minister who delivered the commencement day address for Harding High School graduates last week.

Reverend Lichliter asserted that commencement day observance is one of the few anniversary events which retain their old-time form and flavor. Programs, he said, are virtually the same as ever, sentiment of the occasion being expressed practically as was done when the custom was first established.

Not so with other anniversary celebrations, the Columbus minister declares. July 4, Decoration Day and Thanksgiving Day he finds are viewed chiefly as occasions for some form of merrymaking.

Marion's Decoration Day observance this year hardly served as proof of Reverend Lichliter's view. The day's ceremonies were conducted virtually along the same lines that have been followed for decades and public interest was as great as ever, if not greater. The element of reverence, in fact, seems to be increasing as the ranks of the Civil War veterans decrease.

USING THE BRAIN

COMMENCEMENT exercises at Chautauqua Pavilion this year attracted one of the largest crowds ever seen at a similar event. Most of the throng came in automobiles and traffic snarl naturally resulted as the hundreds of cars began to move out of the grounds.

The mix-up provided one youthful motorist an opportunity to display a bit of ingenuity in handling the traffic situation.

A long line of cars was held up on a driveway leading out of the park, being unable to gain an entrance into the steady flow of traffic on the Harding Highway.

After the blockade had lasted 10 or 15 minutes, with honking of horns and shrieking of sirens failing to relieve the situation, a young man suddenly appeared and with an air of authority and grim determination held up his hand before the traffic line on the highway.

Assuming that he was a traffic officer, drivers on the highway brought their cars to a halt and the long-delayed machines in the park began to move out.

It was then ascertained that instead of being a traffic officer the youth was a passenger in one of the blockaded cars. When his machine came out of the park he climbed aboard.

Proving that brains are intended for something besides filler for the skull.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WHEN I had let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth this morning the squirrel was not anywhere to be seen. I fixed the fire and took the milk pail and went out to the barn to milk the dummed brutes and none of the bunch had came yet, so I rolled my two bits up in a piece of paper and was going to bury it in the feed in the feed box so that I would not lose it and I could save it up for the Fourth of July. When I lifted up the lid the squirrel was in there and he jumped out right in my face so quick that I jumped backwards and stumbled over Jubilee and sot down on the barn floor like an earthquake, and that made me mad. So when I had hid my two bits and milked the cows and gave Jubilee a few squirts where he sot waiting for them with his face open, and had turned out the cows and fed my face, I brang out my trap and bored a hole in a black walnut and a hole through the end of the tricker. Then I fixed a board over the top of the trap so the squirrel could not clim on to and spring it, but would have to go inside, and then I sot the trap and went over to the vacant lot where our cows always wait for us.

The bunch was going to play ball, so I threw the bat to Peanuts and he caught it, and we were putting our hands over each other to get to the top of it, and I was going to have first choice when some one hollered and the dirty crook knew he was going to loose so he dropped the bat and turned around. I gave him a skate in the pants that almost lifted him off the ground, and than I grabbed the Lost Bag of Tripe and jerked him to where I had been right quick, so that when Peanuts swung around with his fist out with all his might it hit the Lost Bag of Tripe in the ear and almost knocked him for a cartwheel. It was Miss Parmer calling, and we all shun out, and she said she had made a crock of cookies the day before and wouldn't we each like one, and we all went in and got one. Mom Parmer looked out of the window, and said, "Who are the two boys that are wrestling?" and we looked and it was Peanuts and the Lost Bag of Tripe, and old man Scanlun was almost to them with a pail of water, and just as we looked he threw it on them and they certainly did break away. Peanuts chaseted the Lost Bag of Tripe out of sight, and I went and got my cows and took them to the pasture.

We went in swimming in the creek and almost froze and then we made a fire and went in again and stayed there till time to take the cows home.

I did not have any squirrel in my trap, but I will get him yet. I bet he is laughing at me.

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. You will be surprised at the tonic effect this doctor's formula will have on you.
